FOREWORD

As Minister of Northern Development and Mines, I'm pleased to introduce this 1986/1987 Northern Ontario Directory — an annual publication that provides information on unincorporated communities and Indian Reserves with populations of 25 or more in Northern Ontario's 10 territorial districts.

We've tried to make this a factual, comprehensive and easy-to-use guide, and we welcome any comments or suggestions that will help us make it better.

Northern Ontario's unincorporated areas have no municipal structure and so have no way to raise taxes for such basic services as fire protection and a drinkable water supply. These services are provided under two Ministry of Northern Development and Mines programs: the Unincorporated Communities Assistance Program provides capital grants for fire protection equipment, community wells and other services; the Local Services Board Act provides a legal mechanism for citizens of unincorporated areas to raise money and to be eligible for matching funds from the Ministry for the operating and maintenance expenses of such basic services as fire protection, sewage disposal, garbage collection, street lighting and recreational facilities.

If you want information on the north's incorporated communities, two other publications may help: Profiles of Ontario Municipalities from the Ministry of Industry, Trade and Technology; and the Municipal Directory, published by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

HON. DAVID PETERSON
Premier and Minister of
Northern Development and Mines

GLOSSARY

An UNINCORPORATED COMMUNITY is a community without municipal organization.

An INDIAN RESERVE is defined as a section of land set aside for the use and benefit of a particular group of Indians or an Indian band under the provisions and terms of the Indian Act, the federal legislation governing Indian affairs. Each Indian reserve has a band council to direct the affairs of the community. The band executive, made up of a chief and a number of councillors can be elected or appointed by the band members.

A LOCAL SERVICES BOARD is a legally constituted, self-help body of three or five annually elected members, acting on behalf of the residents of an unincorporated community to ensure that basic services are provided for them on a continuing basis: water supply, fire protection, sewage disposal, garbage collection, street or area lighting and recreational programs or facilities. A local services board is financed by the community itself or through existing provincial government programs, in addition to the matching subsidy arrangement between the Ministry of Northern Affairs and a local services board. The residents of an unincorporated community must decide whether a local services board would be in their best interests.

A LOCAL ROADS BOARD is administered by the Ministry of Transportation and Communications, composed of three trustees elected annually. Each board is responsible for the construction and maintenance of public roads within its district. The Ministry of Transportation and Communications and the local roads board share the cost of this service. Formation of a local roads board is optional, the choice being left to individual communities.

A GEOGRAPHIC TOWNSHIP is a named land subdivision of a geographic district, with legally defined boundaries.

DAWSON TOWNSHIP (MELDRUM BAY)

Meldrum Bay is the only settlement in the township and is named after a market town in Scotland. In 1876, the federal government constructed a light-house at Meldrum Bay. Commercial fishing was once the important industry and Meldrum Bay supported three fishing tugs. Today, tourism, hunting and fishing provide Dawson Township with plenty of summer activity.

SHEGUIANDAH RESERVE #24

Sheguiandah Reserve was founded around 1860 by a number of Indians who had accepted the faith of the Anglican church. The origin of the name is a little doubtful: one old Indian story tells of a Frenchman by the name of "Shequi" who had a trading post on an island somewhere in the bay. It became known as "Shequi's Home", "andah" meaning home. The reserve is approximately 5,100 acres in size.

AROLAND

Aroland was inhabited at the turn of the century but very loosely organized. With the railway expansion in the early 1900s and the establishment of the Arrow Land and Logging Company in 1933, Aroland became a more permanent community. This company closed its operations in the early 1940s and Kimberly-Clark began a major expansion program in the area during the late 1970s. Aroland received legal status as a Band (Band #242) in April 1985. The residents who had held Indian status as members of Long Lake Band #58 and #77 have transferred status under Aroland Band #242. The community does not yet have reserve status.

MACLEOD TOWNSITE

The community came into existence in 1935 as a townsite for the employees of MacLeod Cockshutt Gold Mines Limited. In 1936, the townsite was almost completely burned. However, it was rebuilt immediately, and housed the mine employees until August 1970, when the mine closed. Today the homes are owned individually and the townsite remains a residential area outside of Geraldton.

NOLALU

The first settlers arrived in the 1890s the same time as the opening of the Silver Mountain Mine. While some settlers worked for the mine, most took homesteads and cut logs for the local sawmills. The name Nolalu is derived from the first two letters of the North Land Lumber Company, one of the sawmills operating in the area at that time.

PEARSON

Land settlement grants were provided to Veterans who served in defense of Upper Canada during the Fenian raids. The deeds to land in Pearson (named after an Anglican Minister who had been in the Ministry for 50 years) were granted in approximately 1906 (though there is little evidence to support their actual settlement and use of these grants). The bulk of settlers came to Pearson from Norway, Finland, Scotland, England, Southern Ontario and the States around 1913. They were mainly involved in farming, carpentry and lumbering.

SCOBLE

Surrounded by organized municipalities, Scoble remains unorganized. It was primarily homesteaded by pioneers earning a living by gardening and cutting timber. In the early 1890's, prospecting for silver was very active. Rabbit, Beaver and Badger mines were in the area. Although many homesteaders continued to dig holes in the hills, no silver was found.

UPSALA

Upsala was originally developed for World War 1 veterans and was eventually sold to them for one dollar per lot in 1923. It was, at that time, a farming area which grew potatoes and won several awards for crops yielding over 500 bushels per acre. Some farming is still active in the area but the main industry is now logging.
